THIRD SUNDAY OF EASTER - APRIL 19, 2015

Dear Sisters and Brothers,

It was Monday morning, August 19, 2013, when Fr. Antonio Spadaro, editor of an international Jesuit magazine, approached the Santa Maria guesthouse where Pope Francis lives. He'd come for an interview with the recently elected Pope and found him standing there, with a broad, welcoming smile.

He had his first question ready but decided not to use it. Instead he found himself boldly asking the Holy Father: "Who is Jorge Mario Bergoglio?" For a moment the Pope stared in silence, though he assured the priest that he was not annoyed with the question. But, he explained, "I do not know what might be the most fitting description..." Then he went on: "I am a sinner. This is the most accurate definition. It is not a figure of speech... I am a sinner." After a few further comments, he reaffirmed that the best summary he could give of himself, the one that felt nearest to the truth, was this: "I am a sinner whom the Lord has looked upon."

In the sermon recorded in today's First Scripture Lesson, St. Peter the preacher pulls no punches; he reminds his hearers that they are all sinners. Nor could their sins be described as small: "You", he declares, "killed the prince of life." It's difficult to see how there could be any greater sin. But, thankfully, St. Peter doesn't leave the matter there; he goes on to explain: "God, however, raised him from the dead." It is as though he's saying: God has an answer for sin, for every sin; and the answer is the resurrection. On the cross Jesus took upon himself the burden of our sins and it killed him; through the resurrection his life has been restored and the burden of our sin lifted. No one has put it more forcefully than St. Paul: "If Christ has not been raised... you are still in your sins."

The intimate connection between the resurrection and the forgiveness of sins is highlighted also in today's Gospel Lesson. The disciples are together when Jesus suddenly stands in their midst, greeting them with the words, "Peace be with you!" But, far from being at peace, they are at first filled with alarm and fear. In the first century, just as in the twenty-first, everyone knows that dead people remain dead. The disciples fear that they are seeing some kind of ghost. Jesus' response is to show them his hands and feet, hands and feet that bear the imprint of the nails. "Touch me", he says, "and see for yourselves"; it really is me: ghosts don't have flesh and bones. Then, we're told, "Their joy was so great that they could not believe it." It's as though they are caught between lingering doubts and overflowing joy: it seemed just too good to be true. Finally, an almost humorous touch, Jesus asks if there's anything to eat: ghosts are not in the habit of looking for a meal.

Now that his friends are convinced of his identity, Jesus "opened their minds", helping them to understand why, in accordance with the scriptures, he had to suffer and on the third day rise again. Now, he tells them, it is "in his name", in the name of the risen Christ, that they are to preach repentance of sins to all nations, beginning here in Jerusalem. Forgiveness of sins is the special gift of Eastertide. It is to be central to the Church's teaching until the end of time.

The French writer Charles Péguy once wrote: "The sinner is at the very heart of Christianity. No one understands so well as the sinner what Christianity is about---no one unless it be the saint." We can understand the position of the saint but may wonder how ordinary, sinful people like ourselves can be said to be at the heart of Christianity. But the Scripture Lessons we've heard today may enable us to see things differently. It's not only Pope Francis but each one of us who can answer the question, "Who are you?" with the words, "I am a sinner"; but we are sinners whom the risen Lord has looked upon. His look of love and mercy rested upon us when we were baptised; it rests upon us whenever we seek him in the Sacrament of Reconciliation; and it rests upon us again each time we celebrate the Eucharist and receive Holy Communion. It's the certainty of forgiveness---fruit of the resurrection---that fills us with the joy of the Gospel.

May God always be pleased with us!

Monsignor Michael

Our Scripture Lessons remind us:

...that Pope Francis introduced himself as "a sinner whom the Lord has looked upon";

...that St. Peter points to the resurrection as God's answer to sin;

...that in the Gospel Lesson the risen Christ delegates the apostles to take the promise of divine forgiveness to the earth's ends

...and that the merciful "look" of the risen Christ fills us at every Mass with the joy of the Gospel.

May God always be pleased with us. Amen!

THIRD SUNDAY OF EASTER - APRIL 19, 2015

ST. ANN SCHOOL NEWS

Dear Friends of St. Ann School,

We have marvelous news to share! First, the children collected many things for several organizations during the course of Lent. Our last effort to recognize those less fortunate was sponsored by Student Council to collect money for children in third world countries. We sent half to the organization most of us know as Holy Childhood Association and half to the Religious Teachers Filipino Missions. We received a thank you note from the Filipino Missions letting us know that our donation enabled a village in Ethiopia to purchase and build a well so that everyone would have fresh water.

Our Math-A-Thon donation enabled St. Jude Cancer Center for Children to purchase four wheelchairs for children! We are proud to be able to help and look forward to finding more ways to put the love of Christ into practice.

We are currently in the process of helping St. Margaret Church prepare for a literacy fair for newly arrived immigrants to our country. With the help of the Junior National Honor Society members, we will be sending books and sports items later in April.

A short comparative study of our standardized tests have arrived. While we await our individual student and school results, we do know that we need to celebrate four of the eight grades who were tested. As the list shows, these grades placed in the top three schools in the Diocese of Metuchen in particular areas. We always do well and without teaching to the test. Our teachers teach children the curriculum. But these rankings are just too good not to share.

- Grade 2 ranked third in math.
- Grade 3 ranked number one in reading and second in math.
- Grade 5 ranked second in reading and third in math.
- Grade 8 ranked number one in math.

Thank you for your continued support of St. Ann School.

God bless you,

Sr. Mary Klersey, MPF
Principal
