Dear Sisters and Brothers,

A beautiful saying has come down to us from the earliest days of the Church. This saying goes like this: "The glory of God is a human being fully alive." The author of these words is the second-century Bishop of Lyons, St. Irenaeus. This man was a disciple of St. Polycarp, a bishop in Asia Minor, and Polycarp was a disciple of St. John and knew the generation of the apostolic age. Polycarp, in his own writings, often quoted the writings of St. Paul. Today we hear another beautiful saying about glory that comes directly from the great apostle of the Gentiles. Writing to the Christians of Corinth, St. Paul says, "Whatever you eat, whatever you drink, whatever you do at all, do it for the glory of God."

These sayings about glory are key statements about the meaning of our Christian faith. To live a holy life in this world is to do all things for the one purpose of giving glory to God. As St. Irenaeus has pointed out, giving glory to God means promoting everything that brings human beings to life. How on earth is that to be done?

St. Paul follows up his exhortation by saying, "Never do anything offensive to anyone." There is the answer. The amazing thing about this answer is that we find it in the mouth of St. Paul, who from his earliest days, was a ferocious defender of his faith, and who was quite prepared to persecute others in the defence of his own point of view. This man, once verbally and physically aggressive, is now a person who will not give offence to anyone. In fact he is prepared to suffer any inconvenience if he might help others to know Christ Jesus. He even goes so far as to say, "Take me for your model." That's some turnaround!

The person who brought about this turnaround in the life of St. Paul was the Lord Jesus himself, whom St. Paul met on the road to Damascus. As St. Paul hunted down the followers of the Lord, Jesus said to him, "I am Jesus and you are persecuting me." St. Paul's education now began. He came to know this crucified Jesus, and his eyes were opened to a wider and more wonderful world. From this moment onwards, St. Paul would never again do anything offensive to anyone, neither Jew nor Greek nor Church of God.

St. Paul had come to know the Lord, who went about preaching and curing all who were sick. This Jesus of Nazareth never did anything offensive to anyone, though his opponents found much to be offended about. In today's Gospel Lesson we hear of an encounter with a leper. Jesus is anxious that this cure should not be broadcast, for fear it would cause uproar. The trouble is that good news cannot stay hidden; and soon the story is out, Jesus is forced to stay away from ordinary places. Ironically, the leper has found his place back among his own people and the Lord has been forced outside. But despite that consequence, Jesus was more than willing to heal the sick man. That is why he came---to bring true life to all people and to heal our sicknesses. The trouble is that our deep sicknesses are much worse than skin diseases. They are the sicknesses of the soul, not as easy to see, but the pain is just as real.

Our deepest hurts are the things that cause us to fight one another, our anger and our sense of injustice, our aggressiveness with one another and our violence. These are the true sorrows of our world. How do we heal them?

We are back where we started, with the advice of St. Paul: "Never do anything offensive to anyone." In my own heart the war has to cease. In my own mind the dominating has to stop. In my own actions the controlling has to end. Other people are not going to change their behavior just because I say so. But other people will be led to know the Lord if they see the Lord's grace alive in me. St. Paul used the extraordinary statement, "Take me for your model, as I take Christ." This is not a brag or a boast. It is the highway to peace in the world---our world. Each one of us is invited to do the very same thing.

May God always be pleased with us!
Monsignor Michael

Our Scripture Lessons remind us:

...that to do everything for the glory of God means that we set out each day never to be offensive to anyone;
 ...that the model for this behavior is the Lord himself, who came among us to serve and to give his life;
 ...and that it is not for us to control or dominate others, but to become in our own lives "models" of Christ Jesus.

May God always be pleased with us. Amen!

ST. ANN SCHOOL NEWS

Dear Friends of St. Ann School,

As a student, I used to really dread math class. This lasted through fourth grade. I broke more pencils solving problems than my brother and three other sisters put together. I kept getting back my paper with the hole surrounded by lead pencil where I tried to erase and fix and erase again my work. The hole would be circled in red and some note written about not pressing so hard, memorizing my facts, or some other teacher message.

Then some veil was lifted and it all made sense. I went from failing to 100's almost overnight. I did not need a tutor. I did not need a calculator (a very prized possession for a Jersey girl in the 60's). I did not even need fancy pencils with big erasers. Numbers became easy and math became my favorite subject. I felt like math was a game with one key ingredient that other games did not have. I had a solid chance of winning this game.

As I peek in on our math classes, I see the before and after me faces on our students. To help those who do not realize that math can be a game and that it is winnable most of the time, we hold all kinds of competitions.

This month we are participating in the St. Jude Math-a-Thon. Students get pledges and answer math questions in order to be able to collect on those pledges. It is awesome! They feel like they are getting paid to do math. It is easier than shoveling snow and with very little help, they can earn prizes, too.

Relax! I am not asking any parishioners for pledges. I am sharing with you one of our secrets of success. This kind of activity teaches children to think about others and to do something concrete to help. It teaches empathy and it teaches children that they are not helpless against sickness or other hard things in life. Our children learn that their efforts count. Having personally known a child who benefited and is alive today because of this group, I know the miracles they perform everyday because of such donations. St. Ann Students become part of those miracles.

Thank you for the privilege of being part of the lives of the children of our parish and school. They know math, but they also know Christ and how to be a vehicle of his mercy. Our world and our Church will be better because of them. That is what I call a real win-win situation.

God bless you,
Sr. Mary Klersey, MPF
Principal
