Dear Sisters and Brothers,

John Mortimer, was an English lawyer and prolific writer. He was probably best known for his Rumpole of the Bailey stories broadcast on PBS. Horace Rumpole was an ageing lawyer who has spent his life defending shady characters in London's Central Criminal Court, the Old Bailey, and who has never achieved the seniority in the legal profession his wife considers should rightfully be his! As you get to know Horace Rumpole, you can see why: he has done little to endear himself to the great and the good in the British justice system. For example, he had an unfortunate habit of referring to judges who fail to grasp the legal niceties of his arguments as "old darlings". In one episode, Rumpole was asked by the judge to explain his argument. Rumpole indulged in some verbal gymnastics, prompting the judge to interrupt: "Mr Rumpole, I am none the wiser", to which Rumpole replied, "That's as may be, my Lord, but you are at least better informed!"

Jesus had problems with the legal establishment of his time---the Pharisees, Sadducees and scribes---especially when he taught in the Temple at the end of his ministry. In today's Gospel Lesson, the Pharisees try him with the question: "Which is the greatest commandment of the Law?" The issue was not actually about which commandment took precedence over all others. Rather, Jesus was being asked to express an opinion on whether there was a single commandment whose greatness lay in its capacity to sum up the meaning of the whole of the Law, with all 613 of its precepts. It's easy to imagine the endless debates on the subject among the great and the good of the religious leadership: everyone had an opinion on the matter. It is also easy to see how the question must have seemed perfect to trap this amateur preacher who was causing problems with his radical new teaching.

Jesus doesn't give a direct answer to the question. Instead, he chooses two commandments: from Deuteronomy and from Leviticus. He says, "on these two commandments hang the whole of the Law and the Prophets". I am reminded of pictures in a museum, suspended by two chains. Similarly, the two commandments chosen by Jesus are like two chains that uphold the entire Law.

The two commandments are well known. First comes a quotation from Deuteronomy 6: "You must love the Lord your God with all your heart, with all your soul, and with all your mind." The second, from Leviticus 19, resembles it, says Jesus: "You must love your neighbor as yourself." We are left with the question of why Jesus chose these two, and why he says the second resembles the first. One way we can explore this is to consider Jesus' teaching on the conditions of discipleship. To be a disciple, says Jesus, it is necessary to renounce self and take up the cross and follow him. If we take these in reverse order, we see that these amount to the two commandments Jesus cites as summing up the Law, because they are the way that he too lives the Law. Jesus' total commitment to his Father is shown through his taking up of the cross: the cross shows he loves his Father with all his heart, soul, strength and mind. In taking up the cross he renounces himself. He continually places the needs of humanity before his own needs: that is, he loves his neighbour as himself. To be a neighbor is to address the needs of others before your own needs. So loving God with all our energy, and loving neighbor as self, sums up the Law because it describes perfectly the ministry of Jesus, who is the fulfilment of the Law.

Returning to the sardonic remark of my literary friend Horace Rumpole, could we say that we are now both better informed and wiser for Jesus' exposition on the true meaning of the Law? Hopefully our answer is "yes". If we follow this pattern of understanding Jesus' choice of these commandments to sum up the Law, we can see that he has also given the principles that underline every aspect of our lives as his disciples. Jesus teaches us to make our prayer an expression of our offering to God of everything we are: heart, soul, strength and mind. He calls us to let our entire behavior express our aim to love our neighbor as ourselves.

In your charity, pray for the sick and the lonely - visit them if you can. Please remember to pray for all who have wandered from the Faith and all who have died especially Margaret DeMuro. Also, pray for the souls of all the faithful departed of our Parish Family.

May God always be pleased with us!

Monsignor Michael

Our Scripture Lessons remind us:

- ...that* Jesus chose two commandments from the scriptures to teach the fundamental meaning of the entire Law. His summing up of the Law is also a summing up of the way to discipleship;
- ...that* we can equate Jesus' insistence that disciples take up the cross and follow him with the love of God with all our hearts, souls, minds and strength, and renouncing self and loving neighbor as ourselves;
- ...and that* since Jesus says that the entire Law hangs on these two commandments, our entire lives can be turned towards living by them.

May God always be pleased with us. Amen!

ST. ANN SCHOOL NEWS

Dear Friends of St. Ann School,

The burning question among students this week is, "What will you be for Halloween?" We teach our children the origin and meaning of the holiday as the eve of a great feast day in our Church – All Saints Day. The first part of the word comes from all the hallowed or all the holy ones and the last part is for eve or evening before. In today's world, many of us do not celebrate the evening before events. The most children can relate to the evening before as an "eve" is Christmas Eve.

That being said, we encourage students not to represent themselves as evil. No matter the day, they are always children of God. Like the jack-o-lantern of the season, we want the light of God to shine through them. This light of goodness shines so brightly that others can walk even the darkness by its glow. There is not reason for fear. God is with us and the power of goodness brings us bravery (fortitude) and joy.

There are no tricks with the Lord. He is not out to make us look foolish or to force into some act we would not ordinarily commit. Even on Halloween, God fully respects our free will. From my experience, our God is a God of treats! He wants us to be happy. His treats are not usually high in carbohydrates. They are not covered in chocolate. His treats come in the wonder of each new day, in the warmth of the sun on our cheek which acts as His kiss, and in the smiles of those who love us. He is always finding ways to show us His love.

What an awesome Halloween it would be if we all knocked on the Lord's pearly gates shouting the traditionally "Trick or Treat". Watch the gate leading to the Lord's house open. Imagine what treat will be yours on this special day. Let us celebrate with thanks and joyful expectation.

How blessed we are to be part of such an active, faith based school. Thank you for your continued support.

God bless you,

Sr. Mary Klersey, MPF
Principal
